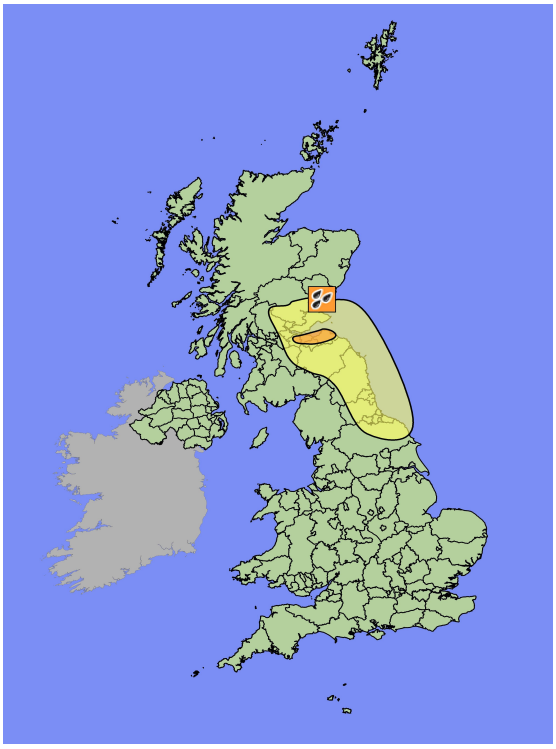
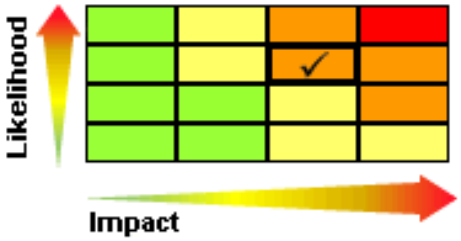
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A frontal zone is being activated across parts of Scotland and northern England. As a result some heavy and persistent rain is likely. A further 20 to 30 mm of rain is likely, particularly in the Amber area where up to 50 mm is possible. With the ground being already saturated, further flooding is likely. There remains some uncertainty regarding the exact position of the boundaries so please watch for possible updates to this warning.

The Met Office have issued an Amber Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Tue, 10th Jul 2012 until 23:55 on Wed, 11th Jul 2012

This is a re-issue of the warning issued at 1214 on Tuesday, with no changes.

Persistent and at times heavy rain will continue to affect much of southern Scotland and northern England on Wednesday. The public should be prepared for the likelihood of localised flooding, particularly in the Amber area. Across Scotland, the rain should gradually ease from the north later in the day
